Dark Skies

In 2016, the Clwydian Range and Dee Valley AONB set about exploring the opportunities to improve the quality of its dark skies and are on a mission to attain appropriate designation by the International Dark Sky Association (IDA).

Light pollution through inappropriate or excessive use of artificial light makes it increasingly difficult to observe the night skies.

Did you know
the skies of parts of the Clwydian Range
are amongst some of the darkest
in the UK?

Over 60% of
our wildlife depends upon darkness
for its survival

To raise awareness of the importance and enjoyment of dark skies this programme includes a series of events – look out for this symbol and don't forget to book!

Moor to Shore Clwyd Challenge

As part of the 2018 Year of the Sea in Wales this challenge series will take us from an introduction at Llyn Brenig to various points along the River Clwyd as it flows along a 35 mile course, dropping 1,200 feet to the famous beach at Rhyl.

Varied wildlife will be seen along the way and we may even be lucky to see species for which the river is well-known – the sea trout or as it is locally known the Sewin.

Join us on the following days to complete this exciting challenge.
